OPHTHALMOLOGIST	OPTOMETRIST
Ophthalmologists are physicians (Doctor of Medicine (M.D.) or Doctor of Osteopathy (D.O.)) who focus in the comprehensive care of the eyes and the overall visual system in the prevention of eye disease and injury. The ophthalmologist is the medically trained specialist who can deliver total eye care: primary, secondary and tertiary care services (i.e., vision services, contact lenses, eye examinations, medical eye care and surgical eye care), and diagnose general diseases of the body.	Optometrists are healthcare professionals who are state licensed to provide primary eye services. These services include comprehensive eye health and vision examinations, diagnosis, and treatment of certain eye diseases and disorders of the eye as well as the diagnosis of certain related systemic conditions. Treatments may include the prescribing of eyeglasses, contact lenses, low vision rehabilitation and medications, and the performing of certain minor surgical procedures.
